relief that words fail to express; a dead weight seemed lilted from our chests, and we could breathe freely once more. My friend suggested that his head was hiding inside of mine all along. What fun! I thought, and could not help laughing even in my consternation. We both eyed each other and did not know what to think of this unearthly business. As for my friend, this was only his first experience and no wonder that he should find himself quite at sea, as to why and how such a miracle should have made its appearance from some unseen world, baffling and upsetting all our earthly calcula-tions hitherto understood? I, however, could not Kelp trying to find some reason for this uncalled for magic and have thought a good deal over the matter ever since my first experience, but still I must admit, that ! have not as yet been able to understand clearly the rationale of the occur-^rence. However, ! shall try to place before my readers all that 1 have thought and deduced from my experience, as clearly as I can manage,.

First of all I must ask my readers to bear in mind the fact that there are two very distinct processes known, of the transmission of power in nautre, from one source to another namely
